BABE THROWN TO ROADWAY

Other Accidents Are Reported Here Over Week End

One woman was probably seriously injured, a two year old boy narrowly escaped death, and two other women and one child were injured slightly in automobile accidents Sunday in heavily trafficked streets in Lima.

Mrs. Alvera Mayhoor, 19, of 305 E. Wayne-st., suffered serious injuries to her back early Sunday afternoon when a car in which she was sitting along the West-st road, was struck by a passing automobile.

Mrs. Mayhoor was thrown against the front seat of the car, injuring her back and leg. Her two-year-old son, Robert, whom she was holding on her lap was thrown out of the car, landing on the ground. The child sustained severe bruises but is not thought to be seriously hurt. Other occupants of the car were also shaken up.

Mrs. Mayhoor was removed to the home of her mother, Mrs. Inez Patton, 305 E. Wayne-st., in Wilkins & Davis ambulance. Her condition was reported improved Monday.

The name of the driver could not be learned although his license number was obtained.

Mary L. Hubble, 216 N. Jameson-av., sustained slight body bruises in a collision Sunday at High and McDonald-sts.

Mrs. Hubble, an occupant of an automobile driven west on High-st by Oliver Simmons, of Toledo, was reported thrown from the automobile when the motor car was hit at the street intersection by another automobile driven by Donald Herron, employee of the Thomas garage.

The girl suffered bruises to her knees and elbows. She was removed to her home by a Thomas garage car, according to a report to police.

OTHER ACCIDENTS

Mrs. H. E. Downey and four year old daughter, Frances, of R. F. D. 7, sustained cuts from flying glass when the automobile driven by C. A. Downey, 954 S. Elizabeth-st., collided with a car driven by H. F. Cameron, 817 W. Market-st., at Jameson and N. st. Cameron was driving north on Jameson-av. and Downey was driving west on North-st. when the two cars collided at the street intersection.

After the accident the woman and daughter were taken to their home and attended by a physician, who announced that injuries were only slight.

Dorothy Miller, 16-year-old daughter of Mrs. Verne Miller, of 615 W. High-st., is in City hospital suffering from a fractured hip sustained yesterday afternoon when she was thrown off a horse. The accident occurred near Kemp, southwest of Lima.

She was removed to her home in an automobile and later taken to the hospital for an X-ray examination. Automobiles owned by G. W. Armstrong, 582 Harrison-av., and Ray Sauer, 719 E. Vine-st., figured in an accident Sunday on E. Market-st. Both machines were damaged when Armstrong's car as it was backed from a street parking space. Drivers escaped injury.

HUNT FOR MISSING FLIERS GOES ON

Other World Aviators Prepare to Continue Trip

CORDOVA, Alaska — (United Press) — The coast guard cutter Algonquin refueled at Dutch Harbor today, preparatory to taking up the search for Major Frederick L. Martin, missing commander of the American air squadron attempting to circle the globe.

The Algonquin and the survey boat Pioneer have abandoned the search in Pacific waters scouring every inlet and cove where Major Martin and Sergeant Alex Harvey, his mechanician, might have taken refuge. In proceeding to the Behring Sea, the Algonquin will be able to determine where the aviators changed their course after taking off from Chigmit and went across the peninsula intending to go down the Arctic side.

The three remaining members of the flying squadron were at Nazeen on the island of Atka today, and will take off tomorrow for Chigmit on the island of Attu, 530 miles.

He would neither affirm nor deny the rumor that Hargrove was given the ultimatum of quitting or having his case aired in public before the civil service commission, which body adjusts all grievances in safety department circles after charges are preferred.

Hargrove stepped into prominence during his suspension here of former Police Chief Jake Roush. He was one of the police chiefs in office at the time and served only temporarily. Hargrove was appointed by Mayor F. A. Burkhardt after he had suspended Roush.

Roush claimed the suspension illegal and refused to step out of office. Fred H. Fisher, was safety director at that time.

Ford H. Fisher has been on detective duty under Detective Inspector Willis Kipper. He worked at night and was especially active in breaking up "parties" in hotels within the city.

Hargrove is the second in Lima police department within the past eight months. Ray Blair was the first to fall under the axe. Blair resigned, according to police department heads, to accept another job.

Frank Knight, Sr., shot and killed his son Frank Knight, Jr., 27, a few moments before a "fatted calf" dinner. Young Knight got married against his father's wishes and was disowned. Mrs. Knight invited her son and his bride to a peace feast. During the mother's temporary absence Knight and the young man got into a fight.

"I shot to frighten him," Knight told police. "He was no good anyhow."

A bullet thru the head killed the young man. He has a police record.

William Sedlacek, 24, was shot and killed as he was standing on the street. The shooting was done by several men as they drove by in an automobile. Laboy trouble was the cause, police believe.

HOUSES BOMBED

Two south side apartment houses were bombed because the owner permitted negroes to move in. A third bomb destroyed the wall of a Checkertaxicab Co. garage, a dozen workers narrowly escaping death.

Two boys and one man were killed in automobile accidents. A dozen others were injured.

Abraham Billiken, wholesale druggist, reported to police that he had been held up, tied and gagged, while a young army carted off hundreds of cases of whiskey from his shop.

He valued the loot at $185,000.

Billiken and his partner are being questioned.

Numerous lesser instances of violence were reported.

Postal inspectors were used to persecute Democratic postal employees and drive them from office.

TWO WOUNDED

CINCINNATI — Two men are in a hospital here today as a result of a pistol battle last night over a woman. Police say Hubert Hoskins, 28, shot and seriously wounded Captain White, 22, and Hoskins in turn was wounded by Patrolman Harry Gorman, when he resisted arrest.

ATTORNEY GIVEN PRISON TERM

Massachusetts Man Sentenced on Blackmail Charge

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — (Associated Press) — William J. Corcoran, former district attorney of Middlesex-co., was sentenced today to seven to ten years in the state prison for blackmail. Mrs. Theresa Dugan was sentenced to five years at the women's prison at Sherburne and T. Warren Kane to three and a half to five years at the state prison.

A stay of execution of sentence on all three was granted.

The charges grew out of the investigation by former Attorney General Weston Allen, which led to the removal of Nathan A. Tufts as district attorney of Middlesex-co. in 1921. Allen named Corcoran as one of a blackmail gang which had extorted money from wealthy men.

GERMANS BACK UP DAWES REPORT

Supporters of Reparations Plan Win at Election

MONARCHISTS ARE DEFEATED

Reichstag Will be Controlled by Big Coalition

BERLIN.—(Associated Press)
The promised big coalition of the moderates, comprising the Socialist, Clerical, Democratic and People's parties is regarded as assured on the basis of partial returns from yesterday's parliamentary election.

Thus the people have apparently placed their seal of approval on the Dawes reparation report as the leaders of the moderates, including Foreign Minister Stresemann, based their campaign on the adoption and execution of the report as a sure cure for the country's ailments.

While the counting of ballots is necessarily slow, due to the large number of party tickets in the field, indications are that the coalition will have sufficient seats in the Reichstag to force thru the enabling legislation required by the Dawes report with little help from the independent factions.

The Nationalists and Communists made some gains, but the vote polled by General Lodenfors' ultra monarchist did not come up to expectations and the result indicates decisive failure of the reactionary and radical extremes.

The balloting was heavy.

BERNSTEIN ELECTED

Among the newly elected are Count Von Bernstorff, former ambassador to the United States; General Lodenfors, head of the extreme Nationalists; Chancellor Max, former Chancellor Wirth, the young Prince Von Eltzmark, grandson of the Iron Chancellor, and Admiral Von Tippitz, the minister of the navy during the world war.

Available results are sufficient to show roughly how the new Reichstag will be constituted. The Socialists lost between 50 and 60 seats, chiefly to the Communists but are still the strongest party in the house with about 110 deputies, as compared with 152 before the election.

The German Nationalists will stand next in strength with 90 deputies or a gain of from 20 to 25. The Communists will have 15 or 20 deputies, an increase of from 20 to 32 and the extreme Nationalists probably will have 20 seats as against three in the last Reichstag.

There is every indication that the German Nationalists will be the deciding factor in the new government.

WAR DEBT PARLEY NEAR

LONDON.—(Associated Press)
As a result of Prime Minister MacDonald's conference with Premier Thiers of Belgium at Cherasco over the weekend, a new inter-allied conference for making the Dawes reparation plan effective is closer at hand than has heretofore generally expected, according to the view of British officials who may have an opportunity to learn something of the informal conversations held at the premiers' official country residence.

The British view is that another milestone has been passed on the long road toward a reparations settlement and that two more are visible ahead. These are the French elections next Sunday and the Belgian conference with Premier Mussolini at Milan May 18. If these are passed successfully Premiers MacDonald, Poincaré, Thiers and Mussolini are likely to meet in London or Paris during June.

RETRACTION OF REMARKS ON DRY LAW DEMANDED

NEW YORK.— The interest of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler's recent attack on the eighteenth amendment is shown by the fact that he has received 10,000 letters and 2,500 telegrams since he made his speech.

Altho undergraduates opinion at Columbia is divided on his views, the hostile element, backed by many parents, has taken the initiative in expressing its dissatisfaction. Several fathers have demanded that their children leave Columbia unless the university here retract his remarks.

No resignations, however, have as yet been received.

"A few letters and telegrams have denounced me," Dr. Butler said, "but the favorable ones outnumber the others in the proportion of 2 to 1."

LINES DRAWN FOR BUREAU BATTLE

House Democrats, Insurgents Join to Abolish Labor Board

FOUGHT BY G. O. P. REGULARS

Will Test New Rule of Lower Branch of Congress

WASHINGTON.—(Associated Press)—Democrats and Republicans in insurgents in the house were united again today in an effort to hasten action on the Barkley bill to abolish the railroad labor board and set up in its place, four wage adjustment boards.

The immediate object of the coalition move was the discharge of the bill, which leaders of both sides conceded in advance, would be closely matched, also offered the first test of strength at this session of the house on railroad legislation.

Representative Barkley of Kentucky, ranking Democrat on the commerce committee, and sponsor of the bill, and other proponents, have charged that an effort was being made "to kill it in committee" thru inaction.

Republican insurgents who hold the balance of power

Some of the insurgents have decried against any reduction in the present maximum surtax rate of 50 per cent. As a result, Democrats have anticipated receiving their support for the Shumans plan, which calls for a maximum surtax of forty per cent as against twenty per cent recommended by Secretary Mellon and approved by Finance Committee Republicans.

With the issue developing practically in a straight party proposition, however, Republican organization leaders have expressed hope of working out an agreement similar to the schedule adopted by the house. This placed the maximum surtax at 37 1/2 per cent and was supported by Republican insurgents of that chamber where the normal rates were cut below those provided in the Mellon plan.

Kaufman Istod comprised 7 cases of "Hoot Mon" whisky, 6 cases of Gordon gin, 5 cases of bullion; 1 barrel of bourbon; 12 cases of bourbon, 1 case of Holland gin, 2 cases of "King William" whisky, three 5-gallon jugs of bourbon; 4 cases of sparkling Burgundy wine; 1 case of "White Seal" champagne.

Ten kegs of whisky, three of wine and 20 quarts of Scotch whisky were found in the Vapo Stove works by officers in a raid last March.

CHARLES M. SMITH

The man in the income tax reduction fight became more clearly defined in the Senate today as the round of debate on the proposed revision in the revenue bill got under way with leaders of both parties still negotiating for support of Republican insurgents who hold the balance of power.

Some of the insurgents have decried against any reduction in the present maximum surtax rate of 50 per cent. As a result, Democrats have anticipated receiving their support for the Shumans plan, which calls for a maximum surtax of forty per cent as against twenty per cent recommended by Secretary Mellon and approved by Finance Committee Republicans.

Dislike

A Lima mother writes us that she is very much worried because her young son is "doing poorly in arithmetic" in school. She says the lad is quite bright in other studies, but she fears he will never be able to master arithmetic.

The trouble probably is in one of two reasons.

First: Arithmetic is taught in the most interesting way possible, to reach the average child. Educators long since realized that making a subject interesting is the key to arousing mental perception and making a study indelible in memory. But this particular lad may be one of the exceptions to whom the present system of teaching mathematics is dull and unattractive.

What is the remedy? We suggest getting this lad interested in figuring baseball percentages. Or, if he likes to "play store" at home, encourage him to keep books on his imaginary sales.

Baseball has greatly increased the average boy's knowledge of mathematics.

A more probable explanation is that this lad is not interested in mathematics for the very simple reason that he is "not cut out for it." There is such a thing as having no "arithmetic sense"—just as some people never can learn to play cards, not having "card sense."

As long as the boy is reasonably bright in other studies, don't worry too much if he is backward at arithmetic. Chances are, when he strikes out in the world for himself, he will follow the line of work he likes best. And, not being "good at figures," he'll hire some one to do his figuring for him—possibly the schoolmate who stands at the head of the arithmetic class.

Real education is MENTAL TRAINING, rather than filling the brain with facts like pouring water into a jug with a funnel. It is important to know things. But it is more important to know where to look for and find knowledge when needed.

The world is full of star mathematicians anxious to work for $35 a week, the same as every poorhouse has several good fiddlers.

So it goes with other studies. We know a man who in school was a dumbbell at history—simply because he wasn't interested. He wanted to write for a living. Well, he's writing now and writing history! In maturity history began to interest him because he found he could make money out of it. So he began to study the past.

Every child, except the exceptionally brilliant, has at least one subject in which he lags. Ponder the studies at which he stars, also the ones in which he is "dull" and probably you can figure out what kind of work he is going to follow.

Increasingly life becomes a matter of specialization, not generalization. School children like grown-ups, succeed best at the things they LIKE to do.

Thirst

Do you ever smoke 50-cent cigars? A dealer in Providence, R. I., was doing such a big business in perfectos at half a dollar apiece that rum sleuths sampled his wares. Inside each cigar was a glass tube filled with moonshine.

Yankee ingenuity will always find a way to get liquor to the thirsty as long as it is manufactured. The same is true of narcotics and all other forbidden fruit. Education alone can enforce prohibition effectively—that and prohibitively high price. The real problem is thirst, rather than quenchers.

AIR GATEWAY

(BY MILTON BRONNER)

LONDON — When the Versailles treaty makers cut East Prussia off from the balance of Germany, by interposing a slice of Poland in between, it was thought to spell the doom of Königsberg, East Prussia's chief city. Instead it has been the making of that town.

To the various policies of the nations of Europe, Germany and Russia have been thrown closer together and Königsberg is the keystone of the arch. It will be the midway point between Germany and Russia for air traffic. Already one big line has been established between Königsberg and Riga, Memel and Moscow. Later other lines are to run to Kharkoff, Tiflis and Tashkent.

The concern which is operating these lines is made up of a trust of all the German airplane companies plus a Soviet representation. Germans are building airplanes for Russia and Germans are constructing enormous grain warehouses in Königsberg to be ready for business when, some day, the Soviets get down to work and raise something like the former huge crop of grain.

In France, Italy and Spain, among other countries, the governments maintain a match monopoly. That is all matches sold in the country are manufactured in factories owned by the state. The national treasures are supposed to be greatly enriched by the proceeds.

But now Premier Poincaré has driven thru the Chamber of Deputies, and expects to drive thru the Senate, a bill to revert to private ownership. In spite of the fact that millions of matches are sold annually in France, it is claimed the revenue is derived.

There has been great outcry on the part of Poincaré's opponents. Not because of their special interest in maintaining a state match monopoly, but because they fear it foreshadows the government giving up its tobacco monopoly, its telephone monopoly and the sale of railways in general.

The Prince of Wales has now officially joined the army of radio fans. Recently he visited a scientific school near London and congratulated the student who was the first Briton to talk by wireless with young Americans along the New England coast. To the youngster the prince confessed that he had also fallen for a set. However, he didn't say what kind of program he wanted to listen to. And he didn't volunteer to broadcast any speeches.

Some of the choice letters of the great Napoleon, which for long were exhibited at the Malmaison residence near Paris in which he spent some of his happiest days with Josephine, have now been withdrawn by the owners and are to be sold.

The letters were brought to France from the Island of St. Helena to which the British exiled him. Among other things there were the shirt which Napoleon was wearing when he died, the compresses which were put on his head during his last illness; the glass tumbler which he drank for the last time; a piece of wood of which the coffin was made; a fragment of the iron grating of the St. Helena tomb, and earth taken from his grave there.

All of these articles had been reverently collected by Archibald, the groom who accompanied his great master into exile and who was in the room when he died.

GOIN' BAREFOOT

(BY HAL COCHRAN)

The grass is all dewy, and goo, but it's cool. It's smooth and it's soft and it beckons. It makes a man wish he was back there in school to go bare foot for just a few seconds.

The sandpits looks tempting when kids are at play. You've seen 'em and you'll understand. Oh, just to go barefoot for even a day and go miling around in the sand.

Perhaps it has rained and your driveway is muck, and puddles of water are oozing. If you could just take off your stockings—what luck! You'd do it if you had your choosing.

The carpet at home is a velvety thing like a spreading of lawn that's uprooted. It makes a man feel that he'd just like a fling at paradise upon it, barefooted.

Say, man, when these things are a-calling to you, just park yourself down on the floor, and joyfully do what the little folks do: take stockings and shoes off once more.

Let me assure all and sundry who may be so burdened that they have no sympathy, and if that is not sufficient, then they may have my advice, which is to consult a physician.

There is one striking fact I have noticed in regard to people with an acid obsession, and that is they generally have as a complication a bad case of Jos. Billings trouble. That is the trouble Jos. Billings found with so many people they know so little about it.

Acidosis is not a definite disease, susceptible to any particular line of treatment.

It is a state which occurs in many diseases, when the normal balance of acid and alkali or base in the blood and other tissues of the body is disturbed, either by the accumulation of an excess of carbon dioxide in the blood or by a decrease of the alkali reserve.

ach contents has no bearing upon the question of acidosis. But the character of the diet has a bearing, which I shall try to show.

Certain foods tend to increase the acid balance and other foods tend to increase the alkali reserve and therefore oppose acidosis are the fruits and vegetables, the greens and salads, the entire cereals, whole wheat flour, or bread (but not Graham flour as it is sold today), wheat bran, crude dark brown sugar, molasses and particularly potatoes, tomatoes, oranges, lettuce, bananas and milk. Foods which tend to increase the acid balance and favor the development of acidosis are in some cases plums, prunes and cranberries (which contain benzoic acid).

THE GREAT DEEDS
Lord, I may fail to reach the heights of fame,
The greater deeds must fall to stronger men,
But here's a glory which I ought to claim—
And failing that, how shall I answer then?

I can be true within my little sphere,
I can be kind and gentle to the end;
What tho' I'm bound by narrow limits here,
Still I am strong enough to be a friend.

Surely I can be brave enough to speak
Sweet words of comfort in an hour of need,
To cheer the lonely and sustain the weak,
And light hope's candle with a kindly deed.

What if the throng for me shall never shout?
The few who know me well may speak my praise
And find in me no cruel cause to doubt,
I need not fail them in their troubled days.

There is so much that truly marks the men.
The greatest conquerors are not always kind,

Who seek for cheers oft serve a selfish plan;
One may be base and have a brilliant mind.

Perchance I'll fall thru all the years ahead
To win the glory which high conquest brings;
But missing that, I would not have it said
I also failed in countless little things.

GERTRUDE GILLHAM

In her last picture, "The Humming Bird," Gloria Swanson impersonated an Apache, which naturally restricted her chance to satisfy her taste for finery. It was a good story, but she was limited to a single gown. This week, however, she blazes forth in her full glory and makes up for any deficiency of splendor in a previous effort. She is to be seen at the Quina in "A Society Scandal," translated to the screen from Alfred Sutro's play, "The Laughing Lady," which was presented on the stage last year with Ethel Barrymore.

In this play, Miss Swanson shows that she can do some very fine acting. She runs the gamut of her talents without overacting. Not very much is called upon from her supporting cast, except from Rod La Rocque, who is as usual, in every way competent.

The story revolves around Marjorie Colbert, who is married to Hector Colbert, who has fixed his attentions upon Patricia De Voe, a young chorus woman. Marjorie thru her sympathy for Harrison Peters, who is losing caste because he is suspected of cheating at cards, gets herself talked about. Her mother-in-law, who idolizes her son, hires detectives to follow the couple and during this time some very innocent situations develop which can be twisted into something quite the opposite. The mother brings the divorce proceedings for her son and Daniel Larr, played by Rod La Rocque, the lawyer who exorcises the young wife, subsequently winning the verdict and the freedom of the husband.

The ex-Mrs. Colbert is determined to revenge herself on the lawyer. She interests him and after one visit he becomes convinced that she has been wronged. At the suggestion of the ex-husband, he determines to reopen the divorce proceeding but Marjorie, however, intent upon her revenge, arranges that he should visit her apartment and there disarranges her costume and rushes out into the corridor into the arms of a convenient reporter to denounce the lawyer for an attempted attack.

Of course, then she discovers that she loves him and rushes down to the newspaper office where she wins another seven-column headline by recanting of the charge she had made. She is about to depart when Parr returns to change her mind and there is an entirely happy finish.

The picture is accompanied by Aesop's Fables and Quina News.

"Pink Pajamas"

Marshall Walker and his musical comedy players are presenting a happy bedroom farce, "Pink Pajamas" at the New Orpheum theatre during the first half of the week. This is a comedy on the order of "Twin Beds" and "Up in Mable's Room" but is entirely different. Walker is the author.

Walker, who is the hit of his show, appears as a young business man in this production instead of his familiar role of agile old gentleman. He is proving exceptionally welcome to New Orpheum audiences and his brand of wholesome fun keeps everyone in good humor.

"Seventy Dollars Worth," a romance of filling station, is the attraction booked for the last half of the week beginning Thursday matinee. Walker is said to have injected a good plot and plenty of comedy into this prosaic corner lot institution.

The usual country store will be a feature Wednesday night and "Chicken Night" will be Thursday.

MUSIC A FEATURE OF Y PROGRAM

Bluffton College Male Quartet and Jazz Orchestra Booked

Featuring the Bluffton Male Quartet and "Bob" Delkman's orchestra, the program for the annual meeting of the Y. M. C. A. to be held in the "Y" gymnasium Wednesday evening, May 7, promises to make this year's annual event by far the biggest ever in the matter of attendance. Dinner attendance reservations for between four and five hundred men are expected to come in Monday and Tuesday.

The Bluffton College Male Quartet has been most favorably received during all of its concert tours of the past school year and the student harmonizers ranked with the best in the state at the Ohio Intercollegiate Glee Club contest held at Memorial Hall, Columbus, in March. Charles Miller, bass, is leader. The other three are William Geiger, Baritone; Roy Hiltz, second tenor, and Elmer Kanagy, first tenor.

In addition to the regular musical numbers on the program each club or organization present will have its special song, yell or stunt of some kind to present, while a short massing of the entire group present will precede the presentation of the annual report of the Lima Y. M. C. A. to be made by T. P. Fearnau, general secretary.

CLUB PLANNING PARTY FOR GRADUATES

With commencement only a month away, members of the graduating classes of the city's high schools are busy planning their final social affairs as Seniors. A number of small informal affairs will be given in the various "crowds" and "sets" but the formal events will be the Junior Hop and the Senior dinner-dances. Graduation will be June 6, and it is during the two weeks preceding this date the seniors will frolic.

The annual dinner-dance given by the seniors of Central High will be held at the Hotel Argonne, May 23. The Central Hi Junior Hop will be on May 29 at the Elks' home, South High's Junior Hop will be on May 29 at the Elks' home, South High's Junior Hop will be an event of May 23 at the Moose Temple.

The one event when seniors of the four high schools are all honored guests is the annual reception given by the members of the College-Women's club for the graduating girls. Invitations will soon be issued for a "musical tea" which will probably be held at the Lima club, on May 31. There will be a very artistic program given by a group of out-of-town dramatists, among them Charlotte Colson Cooks of Chicago, talented reader and former Lima girl. A few local musicians will appear on the program.

Arrangements for the affair are in charge of Miss Violet Bradley, president of the club, and Mrs. Clarence Klinger.

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary society of the Trinity M. E. church will be held at the church, Tuesday afternoon. The routine business and afternoon's program, which will be held at 4:30 o'clock, will be followed by the annual "Family Banquet" at six o'clock. Mrs. John Motter and Mrs. A. M. Squire are in charge of the banquet arrangements.

The program following dinner is in charge of the young people of the church. There will be a number by the Little Light Bearers and a demonstration "The March of the Miles" by the King's Heralds, under the direction of Mrs. Winona Forrer. The Standard Bearers' societies will also be on the program.

Miss Helen Hunter, W. North-st., left Monday for Defiance, where she will be the guest of Mrs. Donald Gaus for several days.

SUSIE SMART'S ADVICE

Dear Miss Smart:
Will you please answer the following questions?

We are two girls of 16 and are five feet, 6 inches tall. How much should we weight?

What colors will be worn most this summer?

Do you think we are too young to go with the boys occasionally?

Can girls of 16 go to work during the summer vacation? About how much should we be able to earn per week?

What should one say when being introduced to some one? What does the person say who is doing the introducing?

How is my writing and may we write again?

TWO PAIRS.
You should each weigh about 114 pounds.

Bright colors will be particularly good this summer. Orange, red and especially the different shades of lemon, such as Mexican and brick-red, will be worn.

Only occasionally and then, of course, only with your parents' consent.

Yes, the law permits girls of 16, in fact, as young as 14, to work during the summer vacation. Your salary will depend upon the work you do. Why not choose something that you are really interested in, something that you intend to take up after you graduate. Perhaps you could get a clerical position, or assist in the library, a clerk or you might look after the neighborhood children, if you enjoy being with children.

Merely say, "How do you do, I'm glad to know you" or "How do you do," and repeat the name. If you are introducing Miss Preston to Mr. Hill, say, "Miss Preston, do you know Mr. Hill?" or "Miss Preston, may I present Mr. Hill".

Your writing is very good. Yes, please write again.

Dear Miss Smart:
Some inquisitive questions for you to answer. We have two girls of 12 summers. We have been told that we are good-looking. These are two young girls who are very good-looking. What are we made in have with? How can we prove their looks for us? They take us out twice every week. They do not go out twice every week. You think they care for us? Don't tell us to forget them young girls, because we can't. Are we old enough to know what real love is?

What are the meanings of the following names: Lucille, Elizabeth, Irene, Francis, Ruth, Jean, Roy, Price, Lyle, Maurice, and William? How long would we stay out? May we write again?

Two young birds.
No doubt the boys care for you but in the way you seem to care for them. It is all right for girls your age to have friendships with the boys if it is rather silly to say you are madly in love with them or that you want to prove their love for you. It is necessary that you forget these young men; have good times together but was several years before you regard your friendships as "serious." No, I do not think that a young girl your age knows what "real" love is.

Lucille means light; Elizabeth means gift of God; Irene means peaceful; Francis means free; Ruth means beauty; Jean and John both means "the gracious gift of God"; Roy means brave; Brie means royal; Lyle means wealth; Maurice means dark-colored; and William means protector.

Her eyes sparkled.
"Whenever you can spare the time, I should love another."
"Tomorrow morning, then?"
"Yes, please."

There was something very childlike in the answer. David laughed.
"Do you know that you remind me of a little girl at a party who has been told to be on her best behavior?" he said.

She colored faintly.

"Do it! I've never been to a party."

"Really?"

He looked amazed.

"Yes, really. You see, I've always been poor—always had to work for my living, until—"

"Until you married Nigel"—he finished for her.

She said nothing. During the last few minutes she had forgotten her deception, forgotten everything but the enjoyment of this ride. Now memory came surging back to her like an engulping tide.

"I have often wished, since I came home, that I'd done more for him," David went on. "There was such a heap of money lying idle; I'm afraid I was mean with him."

"He used to say how generous you were. He always spoke as if he thought the world of you."

David sat in moody silence. He hardly spoke again till they were back once more to the Red Grange.

He got down from the wheel, and, turning, held his hand to Mary.

"You look all the better for your drive," he said. "There is quite a color in your cheeks. I've enjoyed it, too. It isn't often I feel like tea, but I must say I do today."

He followed her into the house.

"Have you got any tea for us, Aunt Florence?" David asked, putting his head round the drawing-room door. "We're as hungry as hunters."

He turned to look at Mary, but she had gone. He went quickly forward into the room.

"By the way," he said, with apparent carelessness, to Miss Varney, "don't write to Fisher. Just at present we'll wait a while, till Mary has got more used to us. She won't be wanting strangers here yet."

"I've just written, David."

David frowned.

"Well, tear the letter up. I've changed my mind; we'll ask them later."

"Very well, dear."

Miss Varney answered resignedly, but her eyes, behind their glasses, looked anxiously once or twice at David.

"And do you think you will like Mary being here?"

"THANK YOU, NO; I'LL LOOK IN AGAIN THIS AFTERNOON."

He did not look at her as he answered her query with the little monosyllable.

There was a sort of youthfulness about him this afternoon that she could not remember having noticed before. She asked an apparently irrelevant question.

"I was only wondering," said Miss Varney. "It will make a great difference in our lives, you know, David. We've always been so quiet, just we two together."

David looked down into the heart of the fire.

"Yes," he said presently—almost wonderingly—"it certainly will make a great difference in our lives."

CHAPTER XXXIX
A Puzzler

Henry Evans thought a great deal about Mary during the days that followed that goody at her flat, and the more he thought of her, the more puzzled and interested he grew.

She had told him in the first place that her name was Mary Furnival, altho with his own eyes he had afterwards seen that the label on her luggage was addressed "Mrs. Nigel Bretherton."

Young Evans had an exceedingly good memory, and he remembered perfectly well that Mrs. Nigel Bretherton was the name she had first given him by which to inquire at the shipping office for the friend who had been drowned in the Multane.

The whole thing was very perplexing.

When the opportunity arose he questioned Miss Adams, the typist, about the Brethertons. She had grown very friendly with him lately, sometimes he walked part of the way home with her after office hours, and once he had taken her out to tea.

"The Brethertons are quite big pots, you know," she said one day, when Evans had skillfully guided the conversation round to them. "They've got a fine place down in the country called the Red Grange. Mr. Fisher often goes there. He and David Bretherton—that's the eldest son—are great chums; they do say that some day Miss Fisher will be Mrs. David."

As a matter of fact she had never heard such a thing suggested, but she had put two and two together out of the little she had seen in the office, and had made a very shrewd four out of it.

"There's no her, now Mr. Nigel is dead," she explained, with the air of one who is entrusted with family secrets. "He never had any children, you know. I wonder how she likes living down at the Red Grange, by the way?"

"Who?"

"Why, Mrs. Nigel! She's gone to live there, you know. I saw the letter Mr. Fisher wrote about settlements, that's how I know. A bit of a change for her, I should think."

Evans opened his lips, and then closed them again determinedly.

"Didn't you say she was very pretty?" he asked pensively.

"Yes—auburn hair. I just love auburn hair."

"Auburn hair!" Evans echoed in amazement. "Why—" he broke off.

"I don't care about auburn hair," he finished, lamely.

Miss Adams sniffed.

"You've got no taste, then."

But Evans did not answer. He felt a little thrill of excitement. Mary had not had auburn hair, he remembered every detail of her sweet face and coloring, and, much as he admired her, he did not think that the description of "very pretty" in the least described her. He sat silent for a moment frowning.

Miss Adams watched him with faint wonderment.

"Why are you so awfully interested in the Brethertons?" she asked, with abrupt suddenness. "You never knew any of them, did you?"

No—how could I? Only as one was killed at the front it makes them rather interesting, and—he stopped. Someone had opened the outer office door, and walked into the room.

Miss Adams glanced round. Evans rose to his feet. A tall man stood in the doorway, looking from one to the other inquiringly.

Is Mr. Fisher in? Oh, good-morning, Miss Adams."

Miss Adams smiled and simpered; she was pleased to be so recognized in front of Evans; she thought it might impress him with her importance.

Good-morning!" she said. She scraped her chair back along the floor and rose.

Mr. Fisher is out just at present, but he'll be in shortly." She linked at a watch-bracelet on her wrist. "In about half an hour, I think. Will you wait?"

The tall man shook his head.

"Thank you, no, I'll look in again this afternoon. You might tell me I called."

He went away, shutting the door after him.

Fans swung round on his stool.

"What's that?" he asked.

Miss Adams answered, with a fine show of unconcern.

"That? Oh, I forgot you didn't know; that's David Bretherton."

"Really?"

Evans looked deeply interested.

"I say, what a fine-looking man, isn't he?"

Miss Adams tossed her head.

"Think so? He's too lanky for my taste; I like broad shoulders."

She glanced at Evans coquettishly, but the inference was wasted on him.

"He often comes up here," she added. "I know him quite well."

She waited, but there was no comment forthcoming, and she fell to locking the keys of the typewriter rather irascibly.

So that was David Bretherton!

Evans wished he had had a better chance of looking at him; it seemed strange that Mary was living under that man's roof. Mary, who filled his thoughts waking and sleeping, Mary, whom—in a wild moment he knew who she was—he had dared to love in his young dreams.

A poor clerk in love with David Bretherton's sister-in-law! He stifled a sigh, and went on copying letters half-heartedly; things were very unfairly divided in life, he thought, with a faint sense of resentment.

CHAPTER XXX

Dore's Plan

Evans managed to be in the office when Bretherton called again; it was he who showed him into Mr. Fisher's room. He wondered, with a touch of humor, what this tall, aristocratic-looking man would say were he to dare to pluck up courage and ask after Mary? He could imagine how he would be withered and snubbed, and yet—he had once been a friend to her in her distress, and who knew but that the chance might come again?

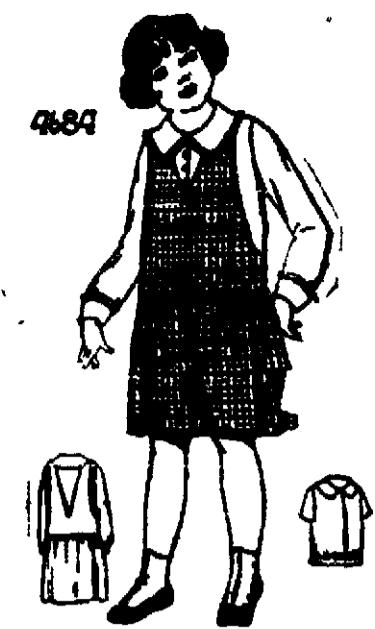

He wondered what the two men were talking about behind that fast-lid door; the incongruous thought flashed thru his mind that perhaps some day there might be an attachment between Mary and Mr. Fisher. It was surprising how that thought hurt him; he tried to dismiss it as being ridiculous.

But in Mr. Fisher's private room he and David Bretherton were making of Mary at that very moment.

"And how do you find the arrangement works?" Monty Fisher was king David interestedly.

THE TANGLE

An Intimate Story of Intense Emotions Revealed in Private Letters

LETTER FROM LESLIE PREScott
COTT TO LESLIE PRESCOTT,
CAR OF THE SECRET
DRAWER, CONTINUED

I just couldn't understand what my husband was getting at, little Marquise, and I said:

"But surely, Jack, it is a good thing for a woman who works to think she can take care of herself."

"It all depends," he said. "On what you mean by taking care of herself." Some girls seem to take care of themselves too carefully, if you see what I mean. They want protection, but they pay so much for it sometimes, that there is nothing left to protect, and so they lose the only splendid thing that life has given them.

"However, I think that is the great trouble with Mrs. Atherton, Leslie—she doesn't want to be protected. She didn't want to be protected when she married. She made this perfectly obvious to her husband. In this she is not clever, for every married woman should make her husband think that he is protector, even if in her heart she knows he isn't and couldn't be if he tried.

"I've rather wondered why your friend ever married at all."

"Oh, she and Sam thought they were madly in love with each other at that time, but Sam was not a money maker, and, of course, you know that Sally is. I don't think it's a good thing, for a wife to be able to earn more money than her husband. There's something in this that makes a man's gorge rise. A man with an inferiority complex is always a very disagreeable man to live with. In fact, I think I would rather live with the most egotistical man alive.

"Now tell me about Syd," I said.

"You've no idea, dear, how interested he is in that foolish little coral gimpes he sent you. I wouldn't be surprised if he went looking all over the earth for one just like it."

"Syd's a splendid chap, Leslie, and he'd make some girl an awfully good husband. I wish he would marry. In fact, I've never known why he didn't marry. I'm satisfied there's some hidden page in his life, but just what it is I have never known, intimate as we are."

"He'd make a nice balance wheel don't you think, for a girl like Sally?" I observed.

"Never in thousand years," was Jack's vehement assertion. "Don't you go to making any matchmaking plans that will take the most efficient secretary I have ever had away from me."

I couldn't help smiling at Jack's earnestness, for in my heart I knew that Sally was the last woman that Syd would fall in love with if just wanted to know what Jack would say about it.

Little Jack's sleepy wail called me from the room. I heard my husband go in to his bedroom, and I knew that he was preparing for bed. I had had a very happy evening, little Marquise. Jack and I had had something new to talk about, and talking with some one you love on new things is very diverting and satisfying, if thru it all there runs an undercurrent of emotion which tells you that some one loves you.

I shall not write you again, little Marquise, until I return from New York.

That New Charm

That free test will reveal it

New beauty and new charm have come to millions in this way. The whiter, prettier teeth you see above what this method does.

This is to bring you like delights by offering a ten-day test.

That dingy film

This method fights the film on teeth—the viscous film you feel. Teeth are not pretty, clean or safe when coated with a film.

That clinging film becomes discolored, then forms dingy coats. That is why teeth lose luster.

Film holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Such troubles came to nearly all under old ways of tooth brushing.

There are now two ways to fight that film, due to modern research. One disintegrates the film by curdling. One removes it without harmful scouring.

Dental authorities, after careful tests, have given these methods their approval. A new-type tooth paste has been created to apply them daily. The name is Pepsodent.

The use of this tooth paste has fast spread the world over, due to the evident results. Careful people of some 50 nations are employing it today.

See the film go

Pepsodent also multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. It multiplies the starch digestant in saliva. Those are the factors which combat the mouth acids and starch deposits on the teeth. So this test will bring you new conceptions of what clean teeth mean.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth become whiter as the film-coats disappear.

You will know in a few days that this new method is essential in your home. Cut out coupon now.

NEW YORK—(Associated Press)—Stock prices showed a tendency to some of their forward movement at the opening of today's stock market, with the advance was resisted by operators who renewed their attacks against a few market leaders.

United States Steel and Baldwin led fractionally to selling pressure but wide variety of copper, mineral, specialties and shipping stocks scored moderate gains.

Pool operations in Marine, railroad and Colorado Fuel which had reached new high levels for the year—28 and 41 5/8 respectively, encouraged renewed buying of representative industrials. U. S. Steel more than recovered its early loss and moved above 99 and Davison Chemical advanced 2 3/8. There were sharp recessions in a number of minor specialties, including Kayser, which broke three points from a 1924 low at 82, but soon the entire list was tending upward on increased dealings. Weakness continued however in Pierce Oil prepared as a result of receivership proceedings. Foreign exchanges opened active.

Strength of standard industrial issues were sustained in the fairly brisk trading pace which continued throughout the morning. American Can moved up a point and conspicuous strength was displayed by U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, Schulte, Utar Securities and Wilson preferred, which advanced one to two points. Colorado Fuel and Marine preferred extended their early gains and American International rallied on improved prospects for the company's recapitalization plan. Reports of increased operations in the railway equipment industry led to revival of activity in representative shares of this group. Moderate gains were registered by a number of railroad issues, including Atlantic Coast Line, Texas and Pacific, New Orleans, Texas and Mexico, Erie second preferred, Norfolk and Western and Pere Marquette, the latter reaching a new 1924 high at 83 3/4. Call money opened at 3 1/2 per cent.

Except for a temporary break in the oil shares, based on the publication of statistics showing a large increase in gasoline stocks, prices displayed a firm tone in today's quiet stock market. Investment, railroad and industrial shares recorded moderate gains. Sales approximated 100,000 shares.

The closing was firm.

Negro Thief In Stolen Machine Makes Getaway

"What are you going to do?" Dr. A. S. Rudy asked of a burly negro whom he told police was about 20 years old, when he stepped out of his home at 215 W. North-st at 9 a.m. Monday and saw the colored gentleman calmly seated in his Dodge coupe.

"Oh, just drive around town," was the laconic reply, and the occupant of the machine stepped on the accelerator to hold the would-be thief in the car until police, notified by his wife, could arrive.

But the negro escaped. An hour later R. J. Manting, 624 W. Union, reported his Ford coupe stolen from between High and North-sts, on Union.

Police suspect the negro, and are now searching for him on two counts.

WEIRD, creeping, annoying sensations — scratch — scratch — scratch — eczema and other skin eruptions, spoiling your complexion — causing you uncleaned for embarrassment — anguish — ruling your temper. All because of impurities that are rampant in your system — because your red blood cells are dormant.

S. S. S. clears up skin eruptions through its power of cleansing the blood. Herbs and herbs, carefully selected and scientifically prepared and combined, which make up the ingredients in S. S. S. are the most feared and dreaded enemies of skin disorders. Eczema, pimplies, boils, blackheads and other skin diseases pack up and leave the system when S. S. S. sends new rich blood coursing through your veins.

Have a general house cleaning for your system. Let S. S. S. rid you of those impurities which tend to keep you in a run-down condition. Skin disorders are nothing more than billboards announcing that the system is "off color." S. S. S. is sold by the leading drug stores. The large size bottle is the more economical.

Getting Skinnier Every Day

Something Must Be Done and Done Darn Quick, Too

Tens of thousands of thin, rundown men — yes, and women too — are getting discouraged — are giving up all hope of ever being able to take on flesh and look healthy and strong.

All such people can stop worrying and start to smile right now for McCay's Cod Liver Oil Tablets, which any druggist will tell you all about, is putting flesh on hosts of skinny folks every day.

One woman, tired, weak and discouraged, put on 15 pounds in five weeks and feels fine.

We sit know that Cod Liver Oil is full of flesh producing vitamins, but many people can't take it because of its horrible smell and fishy taste, and because it often upsets the stomach.

McCay's Cod Liver Oil Tablets are as easy to take as candy, and if any thin person don't gain at least 5 pounds in 30 days your druggist will give you your money back — and only 60 cents a box. Ask Hunter's drug store or Enterprise Drug store or any live pharmacist anywhere.

Get McCay's, the original and genuine Cod Liver Oil Tablet.

When Women Begin To Lose Youth and Charm

Dr. Frederic S. Krich, the New York physician of medical textbooks, whose opinions are greatly valued, writes:

"When the nerve tissues begin to lose energy, woman begins to lose her youth and vivacity. If you take Bitter-Phosphate, please, this condition fades away — she become irritable, moody and dependent. It would be a good idea if men could take it, as women do."

Thousands of thin, run-down people whose nervous energy is nearly exhausted, are turning to Bitter-Phosphate as dispensed by all good druggists because it revitalizes the nerves and brings back energy and mental keenness.

is one reason for the rapidly growing popularity of the Hotel Martinique.

Another is the consistent economy of the entire establishment. Here you may enjoy Club Breakfast at 45c., consisting of Bacon and Eggs and Bacon and Eggs and Coffee.

Special Luncheon and Dinners of superior quality are also served at the most moderate possible prices.

No location can be possibly more convenient than that of the Martinique. One block from the Pennsylvania Station (via enclosed subway) — Nine blocks from Grand Central — one block from the greatest and best Shops of the City — half a dozen blocks from the Opera and the leading Theatres — and directly connected with the Subway to any part of the City you want to reach.

Get more power — yet save 30% on gas!

Engineers prove this possible for any car. Two years of tests

Your motor is rated for certain power.

Now you can have it. Power — speed — flexibility. New pleasure for driving.

And save 30% of what gas costs you a year!

Note curve on chart

In the chart above we give you two important bits of information. Note the column of type at left-hand side of the chart. That tells the requirements gas must meet to give real power, real flexibility. Because all gas is made up of combustible units. The first 10% of them should give quick starting. The second 10% — flying pick-up. The rest, solid pulling-power, speed, mileage.

Now note how the curve of PUROL performance coincides at every point with the ideal requirements! It gives the combustible units needed. That's because it is refined to specifications built on actual motor needs.

30% savings proved

Gas that gives full power also reduces upkeep in general. And the other way around. For two years our engineers have tested PUROL — in 38 different cars. Records of these tests prove:

That PUROL gives 3.3% greater mileage. That PUROL burns cleanly — saving 14.2% of the fuel that usually drips down into the crankcase. That is the way PUROL saves $2.98 a year on lubricating oil. And through the greater efficiency of undiluted lubricating oil, saves $10.33 a year in general repairs.

The average car used 500 gallons of gasoline a year. Thus the first two PUROL savings — 87½ gallons at 20c. — are $17.50. The four together show a yearly saving of $30.81. 30% of the average gasoline expense!

Now you make a test

In a year PUROL will show you a saving of 30%. But you can test its greater power-performance in an hour's driving. Make such a test next time you need gas. You'll fairly feel the new response from your motor.

Get PUROL at any Pure Oil Service Station, or of any Pure Oil dealer. You'll know them by the pumps painted "Pure Oil blue."

And PUROL quality never varies. Whenever or wherever you get it, you'll get this same efficient performance.
